Introduction

Scope of this ISA

1. This International Standard on Auditing (ISA) deals with (a) the auditor’s responsibility to obtain written representations, (b) procedures for evaluating and documenting such representations, and (c) the action to be taken if the auditor is unable to obtain appropriate written representations.

Effective Date

2. This ISA is effective for audits of financial statements for periods beginning on or after [date].

Objective to be Achieved

3. The objective of the auditor is to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence in the form of written representations in order to corroborate other evidence obtained regarding:

   (a) Assumptions about management’s activities and beliefs that are essential to the performance of an audit of financial statements; and

   (b) Specific assertions embodied in the financial statements.

Definitions

4. Written representations in the context of this ISA do not include financial statements, the assertions therein, and supporting books and records. The following terms are introduced in this ISA:

   (a) Written representations - Written statements provided by relevant persons from within the entity to the auditor at the auditor’s request. Written representations are either general written representations or specific written representations.

   (b) General written representations - Written representations regarding assumptions about management’s activities and beliefs that are essential to the performance of an audit of financial statements.

   (c) Specific written representations - Written representations regarding specific assertions embodied in the financial statements.

   (d) Relevant persons – Individuals responsible and accountable for preparing and presenting financial statements and assertions therein. Ordinarily, management is the party responsible and accountable for preparing and presenting the financial statements. In some circumstances, however, other individuals or bodies, such as those charged with governance, are also responsible and accountable. In the case of specific written representations, in rare circumstances relevant persons may also include persons with expertise pertaining to specific assertions.
Requirements

Relevant Persons

5. The auditor shall determine which relevant persons are expected to provide general and, where appropriate, specific written representations. (Ref: Para. A1 – A2)

General Written Representations

6. In themselves, general written representations do not constitute sufficient appropriate audit evidence. Accordingly, they do not relieve the auditor of the responsibility to obtain other audit evidence. However, they do provide audit evidence necessary for the performance of an audit about assumptions in relation to the activities and beliefs of relevant persons. To obtain such evidence, the auditor shall obtain written representations from relevant persons about internal control, the financial statements, and the completeness of information provided to the auditor, as follows:

Internal control

(a) Whether relevant persons acknowledge, understand and have fulfilled their responsibility for designing, implementing and maintaining internal control relevant for preparing and presenting financial statements that are free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error.

Financial Statements

(b) Whether relevant persons acknowledge, understand and have fulfilled their responsibility for preparing and presenting financial statements in accordance with the applicable financial reporting framework, including the following where relevant for the presentation of the financial statements:

- All plans or intentions that may materially affect the carrying value or classification of assets and liabilities in the financial statements have been appropriately disclosed in accordance with the applicable financial reporting framework;

- All liabilities, both actual and contingent, have been recorded and disclosed in accordance with the applicable financial reporting framework;

- The entity has satisfactory title to or control over all assets recorded in the financial statements, and where appropriate, all liens or encumbrances on these assets have been disclosed, in accordance with the applicable financial reporting framework;

- The entity has complied with all aspects of contractual agreements that could have a material effect on the financial statements, or, in the event of non-compliance, has disclosed these aspects as required by the applicable financial reporting framework; and

- All events subsequent to the period end for which the applicable financial reporting framework requires adjustment or disclosure have been adjusted and disclosed.

Completeness of Information

(c) Whether all records, documentation, unusual matters of which management is aware, and other information relevant to the audit have been made available to the auditor.

Other ISAs require the auditor to obtain additional general written representations that are included in the categories above. These ISAs are listed in Appendix 1 and included in the illustrative representation letter in Appendix 2. (Ref: Para. A3 – A8)

7. The written representations from relevant persons shall include an acknowledgement that the representations are made to the best of their knowledge and belief, having made all necessary inquiries.

8. The written representations shall be in the form of a representation letter addressed to the auditor as of the same date as the auditor’s report and shall cover all periods covered by the auditor’s report.

Specific Written Representations

9. The auditor shall obtain a specific written representation where the auditor determines that corroborating evidence, particularly with respect to matters involving judgment, intent or completeness, in relation to specific assertions in the financial statements is necessary to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence. A specific written representation, however, is not sufficient appropriate audit evidence by itself and, accordingly, does not relieve the auditor of the responsibility to obtain other audit evidence. (Ref: Para. A9-A12)

10. Because the auditor dates the auditor’s report no earlier than the date on which the auditor has obtained sufficient appropriate audit evidence on which to base the opinion on the financial statements, the auditor shall consider whether it is necessary to obtain an updated specific written representation if the specific written representation is as of a date earlier than that of the auditor’s report.

Reliability of Written Representations

11. Where a written representation is inconsistent with other audit evidence, the auditor shall determine the reasons for the inconsistency and take appropriate action. If the auditor doubts the reliability of a written representation, that representation is inadequate, and the auditor shall reconsider the reliability of other written representations and shall determine the effect on the auditor’s report.

12. Where the auditor identifies weaknesses in commitment to competence, communication and enforcement of integrity and ethical values, or due care, the auditor shall assess the effect of these weaknesses on (a) the assumptions about management’s activities and beliefs that are essential to the performance of an audit of financial statements and, (b) consequently, on the reliability of written representations. Where the auditor concludes that the written representations are not reliable, the assumptions about management’s activities and beliefs that are essential to the performance of an audit of financial statements are not appropriate. In such circumstances, the auditor has no basis for completing the audit and, accordingly, shall withdraw from the engagement. Where, despite an identified weakness in the control environment, the auditor concludes that a written representation is reliable, the auditor shall document the reasons for the conclusion.

Inability to Obtain Requested Written Representations

13. Where the auditor is unable to obtain appropriate general written representations, the auditor is unable to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence about the appropriateness of the assumptions essential for the audit. The possible effects on the financial statements of that inability are pervasive. Therefore, in accordance with ISA 705, “Modifications to the Opinion in the Independent Auditor’s Report,” the auditor shall disclaim an opinion on the financial statements. Where the auditor is unable to obtain an appropriate specific written representation that the auditor considers necessary in order to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence, this constitutes a scope limitation and the auditor shall follow the requirements of, and guidance in, ISA 705. (Ref: Para. A13)

Application Material

Relevant Persons (Ref: Para. 5)

A1. To identify the relevant persons for general written representations, it is important to consider the governance structure of the entity, relevant legislation, and circumstances of the engagement. Relevant persons include the entity’s chief executive officer and chief financial officer. There may, however, be other relevant persons, for example members of the board of directors or supervisory board. Where uncertainty exists as to the identity of relevant persons, it may be necessary for the auditor to agree with the engaging party, prior to the engagement acceptance, who the relevant persons are.

A2. The auditor applies professional judgment in identifying relevant persons to make specific written representations. In rare circumstances, the auditor may conclude that the person responsible and accountable for the assertion is not knowledgeable about the assertion. In that case, the signature of the person knowledgeable about the assertion may be necessary.

General Written Representations (Ref: Para. 6-8)

A3. Legislation, the financial reporting framework, or custom may establish relevant persons’ responsibility and accountability for preparing and presenting the financial statements and for the assertions therein. However, the extent of this responsibility and accountability may differ across jurisdictions. Despite these differences, an audit is based upon certain assumptions about management’s activities and beliefs. These assumptions include (a) that relevant persons are responsible for the design, implementation and maintenance of internal control, preparation and presentation of the financial statements, and completeness of information to be provided to the auditor and, (b) in particular, that relevant persons acknowledge, understand, and have fulfilled these responsibilities. Audit evidence obtained by the auditor throughout the audit provides support for these assumptions. However, such support is not sufficient without obtaining general written representations from relevant persons, because their knowledge may not be available from other audit evidence. For example, an auditor could not conclude that all relevant information has been provided without asking whether all such information had been provided.

A4. Relevant persons may have acknowledged the assumptions in the terms of engagement. However, without obtaining general written representations, the auditor would not have sufficient appropriate audit evidence in relation to the appropriateness of the assumptions. The expression of relevant persons’ responsibilities in law and the signing of financial statements by the relevant persons do not, of themselves, provide sufficient audit evidence.

A5. Requesting representations about important matters is an effective auditing procedure, in that refusal to provide the requested representations may alert the auditor to possibly significant issues. Further, the requirement to make written representations rather than merely responding to informal inquiries will likely cause the relevant persons to pay greater attention to such matters. Having to make general written representations reinforces relevant persons’ responsibilities in relation to the financial statements and the audit, and prompts them to thoughtfully consider specific issues.

A6. In some circumstances, it may be appropriate for the auditor to request that the representation letter be discussed with, and agreed by, those charged with governance to ensure that all those charged with governance are aware of written representations on which the auditor intends to rely in forming an opinion on the financial statements.

Considerations Specific to the Audit of Smaller Entities

A7. In smaller entities, obtaining a representation letter may be particularly useful where there is a need to clarify the relevant persons’ understanding of the assumptions about management’s activities and beliefs that underlie an audit.

Considerations Specific to the Public Sector

A8. The objectives of an audit of public sector entities, legislation or circumstances may give rise to the need for additional general written representations. These may include the following:

- General written representations acknowledging economy, efficiency and effectiveness of programs, projects and other activities.
- General written representations on the existence of the internal audit function that is appropriate for the size of the entity and its activities.
• General written representations pertaining to the auditor’s evaluation of the entity’s risk assessment systems. In these circumstances, general written representations may also address systems and procedures that assess risks, and state whether relevant persons have monitored and assessed them.

Specific Written Representations (Ref: Para. 9 -10)

A9. In some circumstances, the auditor may conclude that a specific written representation is necessary to corroborate other evidence, particularly where intent is involved.

A10. Evaluating intent is inherently subjective, and therefore uncertain. In some cases, the auditor may obtain evidence supporting or inconsistent with relevant persons’ assertions by considering matters directly or indirectly linked to the assertion. For example, relevant persons may assert their intent to operate a plant in financial difficulties. In assessing the relevant persons’ assertion, the auditor obtains information that the product made in the plant is being replaced by a new generation product made by another entity. Such information may provide the auditor with evidence inconsistent with the relevant persons’ assertion. When evaluating relevant persons’ judgments and intentions the auditor may consider one or more of the following:

• The entity’s past history in carrying out its stated intentions.
• The entity’s reasons for choosing a particular course of action.
• The entity’s ability to pursue a specific course of action.
• The existence or lack of any other information that might have been obtained during the course of the audit that may be inconsistent with management’s judgment or intent.

A11. The reliability of a specific written representation is influenced by its source and nature. Because the source is not independent, a specific written representation does not by itself provide sufficient appropriate audit evidence. For example, a written response to a specific inquiry in relation to the cost of an asset is not a substitute for the audit evidence of such cost that the auditor would ordinarily expect to obtain. In some circumstances, such as when valuing investments where management’s intent is crucial to the accounting treatment, it may not be possible to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence without a specific written representation from relevant persons in relation to their intentions. In these cases, a specific written representation, together with other evidence obtained by the auditor, may provide sufficient appropriate audit evidence.

Threshold Amounts

A12. Where applicable, general and specific written representations may be limited to matters above threshold amounts established by the auditor for the purposes of such representations, having given effect to the possibility of immaterial matters aggregating to become material. In setting a threshold amount, an auditor also may consider the qualitative aspects of some matters, such as fraud. For this purpose, the auditor may consider agreeing on the threshold amounts with relevant persons. Threshold amounts may vary with different written representations. Threshold amounts may not apply to written representations concerning overall responsibilities such as for internal control.

Inability to Obtain Requested Written Representations (Ref: Para 13)

A13. General written representations relating to the relevant persons’ responsibility for (a) the design, implementation and maintenance of internal control, and (b) the completeness of information, are relevant for all audits. However, some general representations relating to the relevant persons’ responsibility for preparing and presenting the financial statements may not always be relevant. For example, written representations relating to liabilities may not be necessary where the financial statements were prepared and presented on a cash basis, in accordance with the applicable financial reporting framework.

Example of a General Written Representation Letter

The following letter includes general written representations required by this and other ISAs in effect December 31, 2006. It is assumed in this example that there are no exceptions to the requested representations. If there were exceptions, the letter would need to be modified accordingly to reflect the exceptions. Where the auditor determines that one or more specific written representations are sufficiently important, the auditor may conclude that the inclusion thereof in the representation letter is appropriate. Although such inclusion of specific written representations on a variety of matters may serve to focus relevant persons’ attention on those matters, and thus cause the relevant persons to specifically address those matters in more detail than would otherwise be the case, the auditor needs to be aware of the limitations of specific written representations as audit evidence as set out in this ISA.

(ENTITY LETTERHEAD)

(To Auditor) (Date)

This representation letter is provided in connection with your audit of the financial statements of ABC Company for the year ended December 31, 20XX for the purpose of expressing an opinion as to whether the financial statements “give a true and fair view” or “are presented fairly, in all material respects,” in accordance with the applicable financial reporting framework. We confirm, to the best of our knowledge and belief, having made all necessary inquiries, that:

Internal Control

• We acknowledge, understand and have fulfilled our responsibility for the design, implementation and maintenance of internal control to prevent and detect fraud and prepare financial statements in accordance with the applicable financial reporting framework.

Financial Statements

• We acknowledge, understand and have fulfilled our responsibility for preparing and presenting the financial statements in accordance with the applicable financial reporting framework, including the following:
  o All plans or intentions that may materially alter the carrying value or classification of assets and liabilities in the financial statements have been disclosed in accordance with the applicable financial reporting framework.
  o All liabilities, both actual and contingent, have been recorded and, where appropriate, disclosed in accordance with the applicable financial reporting framework.

1 Where the auditor reports on more than one period, the auditor adjusts the date so that the letter pertains to all periods covered by the audit report.
The entity has satisfactory title to, or control over, all assets disclosed in the financial statements and, where appropriate, all liens or encumbrances on these assets have been disclosed in accordance with the applicable financial reporting framework.

We have complied with the aspects of contractual agreements that could have a material effect on the financial statements and instances of non-compliance have been disclosed as required by the applicable financial reporting framework.

We believe that significant assumptions used by us in making accounting estimates, including those measured at fair value, are reasonable; and, for fair value measurements and disclosures, that they appropriately reflect our intent and ability to carry out specific courses of action on behalf of the entity where relevant to the accounting estimates and disclosures (ISAs 540 (Revised) and 545).

We believe that all events subsequent to period end for which the applicable financial reporting framework requires adjustment or disclosure have been adjusted or disclosed.

We believe that the information we have provided regarding the identity of the entity’s related parties and its related party relationships and transactions is complete and accurate (Proposed ISA 550 (Revised and Redrafted)).

We believe that related party transactions and the effects of related party relationships have been appropriately accounted for and the financial statements reflect the economic substance of these relationships and transactions (Proposed ISA 550 (Revised and Redrafted)).

We believe that the related party disclosures in the financial statements are appropriate (Proposed ISA 550 (Revised and Redrafted)).

We believe the effects of uncorrected misstatements are immaterial, both individually and in the aggregate, to the financial statements as a whole. A list of the uncorrected misstatements is attached to the representation letter. (ISA 450)

Completeness of Information

- All records, documentation, unusual matters of which management is aware, and other information relevant to the audit have been made available to you.

- We have disclosed to you the results of our assessment of the risk that the financial statements may be materially misstated as a result of fraud (Proposed ISA 240 (Redrafted)).

- We have disclosed to you all information in relation to fraud or suspected fraud that we are aware of and that affects the entity and involves:
  - Management;
  - Employees who have significant roles in internal control; or...
• Others where the fraud could have a material effect on the financial statements (Proposed ISA 240 (Redrafted)).

• We have disclosed to you all information in relation to allegations of fraud, or suspected fraud, affecting the entity’s financial statements communicated by employees, former employees, analysts, regulators or others (Proposed ISA 240 (Redrafted)).

• We have disclosed to you all known actual or possible non-compliance with laws and regulations whose effects should be considered when preparing financial statements (ISA 250).

• We have provided to you complete and accurate information regarding related party relationships and transactions (Proposed ISA 550 (Revised and Redrafted)).

PROPOSED CONFORMING AMENDMENTS

ISA 200, “Objective and General Principles Governing an Audit of Financial Statements”

33. Certain assumptions about management’s activities and beliefs are essential to the performance of an audit of financial statements. These assumptions include, but are not limited to, whether management acknowledges, understands and has fulfilled its responsibility for:

- Preparing and presenting the financial statements in accordance with the applicable financial reporting framework,
- Designing, implementing and maintaining internal control over financial reporting, and
- Providing complete information to the auditor.

As the audit progresses the auditor obtains audit evidence about these assumptions. General written representations constitute a necessary part of this evidence. Consequently, without general written representations, the auditor cannot conclude that sufficient appropriate audit evidence has been obtained.

ISA 210, “Terms of Audit Engagements”

Agreement on Essential Assumptions with Management

5a. The auditor should identify and agree with management the assumptions in relation to management’s activities and beliefs that are essential to the performance of an audit of financial statements.

5b. ISA 200 discusses the assumptions in relation to management’s activities and beliefs essential to the performance of an audit. The auditor may determine that there may be a risk that these assumptions may not be understood by management. To make management aware that these assumptions confirmed by written representations are an integral part of the audit, the auditor may include in the terms of engagement the auditor’s expectation of receiving from relevant persons general and, where appropriate, specific written representations.

5c. Where (a) the auditor and management fail to agree on the assumptions in relation to management’s activities and beliefs essential to the performance of an audit (an agreement that is necessary for performing an audit), and (b) the auditor does not receive confirmation of these assumptions by general written representations, the auditor will be unable to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence. In such circumstances, it may not be appropriate for the auditor to accept the engagement. In some cases, however, law or regulation prevents the auditor from refusing an engagement. In these cases, the auditor may need to explain to management and those charged with governance the importance of such an agreement to provide written representations, and the implications for the auditor’s report.
