03 October, 2015

I am Denise Juvenal this is pleased to have the opportunity to comment on this consultation of the International Education Standard - Guiding Principles for Implementing a Learning Outcomes Approach, this is my individual commentary. I agree with this exposure draft.

Request for Comments: The IAESB welcomes comments on the Guiding Principles for the Implementation of a Learning Outcomes Approach. Comments are most useful when they include reasons for agreeing or disagreeing. If you disagree, please provide alternative suggestions. A series of questions have been provided; however, respondents are welcome to provide the IAESB with additional comments.

Guide for Respondents/Questions:

1. What is your view on the Guiding Principles? Specifically, are they helpful in providing a guide for implementing an effective learning outcomes approach?

In my view on the Guiding Principles has the principal points for understand the elements of design, assessment and governance and they are helpful in providing a guide for implementing an effective learning outcomes approach. However, the skills, experience and professional values are important for development of continuous improvement of professionals and professors in the organisations and universities.

2. How do you see the use of these Guiding Principles benefitting your organisation, or other organisations with which you are familiar?

I see that use Guiding Principles simplify the principal points for understand the method and characteristics for comprehend the learning in the organisations, although the experience, dedication, study and training have impact in the development professional.

3. What additional Guiding Principles do you recommend to support the implementation of a learning outcomes approach?

No. I do not recommend additional Guiding Principles to support the implementation of a learning outcomes approach.

4. What other areas of implementation guidance would you recommend be developed to support a learning outcomes approach?

I recommend be developed other areas of implementation guidance to integration of the implementation of international standards in the organisations because this experience and results of difficulties can improve the research in the universities.

5. Have you implemented a learning outcomes approach? If yes:

a. What recommendations do you have for others yet to implement a learning outcomes approach? Please share an example(s) of your approach – including assessment activities used - which you believe may be useful to assist others implementing a learning outcomes approach
