Q1. What are some of the most significant challenges in Albania for development of the profession?

The main challenges of the profession in Albania are related to the increasing number of members in the professional organizations, the strengthening of the role of professional organizations in professional and institutional capacity building, the fight against unfair competition in the profession, and the application of accounting and auditing standards. There is the challenge of application of the Code of Ethics. The accounting profession maintains and enforces high ethical standards in a self-regulatory regime, such as issuing and enforcing codes of ethics. However, code of ethics are only a partial solution to the perceived problem of ethical behaviour. Codes can only guide one’s behaviour; ethical decisions ultimately rest with individuals’ choices. There is the challenge of the quality controls. Accounting standards that produce a high-quality financial statements have to be supplemented by strong and effective quality controls, as well as a profession-wide quality assurance mechanism.

Q2. What does IFAC represent for you and your organization? Why did you apply for associate status?

IFAC is the international organization that joins professional accounting organizations worldwide. IFAC supports the accounting profession with regulations, standards, and codes, leads and directs the development of the accountancy profession in the world, ensuring the strengthening of professional accounting organizations. It also issues guidance to ensure high quality performance by professional accountants in business.

IKM has applied for membership because it thinks and judges that through this membership will provide support for the development of the accounting profession in Albania, will provide an international support and coordination in the way toward the profession, because it is convinced that by being member of IFAC, IKM is joining the world’s most prestigious professional organizations, and will provide support and guidance in the right direction for its members. IKM is convinced that membership in IFAC is the only way for a rapid, safe, and qualitative accounting profession in Albania, and increasing the role of the accounting and accountants in their public interest service.

Q3. How do you think joining IFAC will impact your organizations and your members?

IFAC membership will enable IKM to establish connections and relationships with professional organizations in other countries, enable the exchange of experience, getting the most appropriate tools and guidelines for organizing the profession and professional and institutional capacity building. This membership will increase the role and influence of IKM on national accounting organizations and government agencies toward the accounting regulations and accounting profession.

IKM members will benefit from the membership for the regulation of their organization and the regulation of the profession and professional activity. The education of the members of the IKM will be of a higher quality level and in coherence with that of most developed countries. In all its activity, IKM will have the possibility to use the experience of IFAC and IFAC members, the IFAC literature in education, regulation of the profession, codes and standards, so that will increase its capacity to its member and will create the condition to ensure high quality performance by the certified accountants that in their in business
