

Deputy Directors, IAASB

The International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) is responsible for the establishment, maintenance and enhancement of international standards for auditing, quality control, review and other assurance and related accounting services in the private sector to ensure consistent professional accounting practices. The Deputy Director participates in the management of and strategic planning for the IAASB, and supervises Technical Managers in preparing technical reports, exposure drafts, consultation papers and best practices documents addressing auditing and accounting issues.

Specific duties include: editing and revising work of Technical Managers for quality, timeliness and the relevancy to IAASB's objectives; advising Technical Managers on technical, process or administrative issues; editing and revising proposed accounting and auditing standards and guidance (exposure drafts and final versions) and overseeing release; responding to technical or process issues raised by advisory groups; monitoring progress and quality of projects undertaken by IAASB task forces and adherence to due process; supporting the Technical Director in identifying and responding to new developments and emerging issues; monitoring and revising IAASB project timetables; preparing submission of the annual budget for the IAASB and quarterly re-forecasts.

Minimum Requirements: Bachelor's degree in accounting or finance, a professional accounting certification, and at least three years of experience involving the technical interpretation and implementation of International Standards on Auditing (ISAs) and International Financial Reporting Standards (IFRS).

Apply via e-mail, with resume and salary requirements to: jobs@ifac.org. All inquiries must include job code [IAASBDD929] to be considered. International Federation of Accountants, 529 Fifth Ave., New York, NY 10017.